An active duty Sailor assigned to MacDill Air Force Base, Florida, is currently undergoing evaluation and treatment following a positive novel coronavirus test. The Sailor is believed to have contracted COVID-19 during recent travel.

MacDill Air Force Base remains in Health Protection Condition Level Bravo

“Right now we have one confirmed case of COVID-19 on our installation,” said Colonel, Stephen Snelson, commander, 6 Air Refueling Wing. “The safety of our Airmen, families and employees is our top priority. We will continue to work with our interagency partners to ensure we do everything we can to mitigate the effects of COVID-19 and ensure our Airmen, families and employees here have the most up-to-date information on appropriate measures to prevent the potential spread of the virus.”
